

Moses Yang

A Kiss Between

a snowflake

Windy,
winding,
winded.

I whip my wings
and wear a wink
'cause I know I can fly.

Fly high,
feel the sky—
hold me tight;
I'm scared.

Here I hold some
wisps of wear
I sip a sip
of wine and whine.

The sky is mine—
the star of the show!

But I miss
way back when
comfort of clouds
friends in flakes
secure security

I'm falling now.

A tree.

A kiss.

and a tree

A kiss.

A snowflake.

I'm glittering now.

All I want
there and then
freedom of flight
spacious space
flexed flexibility

The earth is mine—
the king of the kingdom!

Here I hold and
grasp the ground
my roots rooted;
I'm moved to move.

Fly high,
feel the sky—
wander the world;
for me.

I leave my leaves
and break my branches
'cause I know I can't fly.

Gritty,
grinding,
grounded.